Alaska Occupational Safety and Health 8-Hour Accident Reporting Requirement

Alaska law (AS 18.60.058) requires employers in Alaska to report workplace accidents that result in a fatality or inpatient (overnight) hospitalization of one or more employees. The employer is allowed up to eight hours to make the report upon becoming aware of a reportable accident, but must make efforts to report the accident earlier if possible.

The report must include the name of the employer, the time and location of the accident, the name and telephone number for the employer's contact person, a brief description of the accident, the number of fatalities and/or hospitalized employees and the extent of any injuries.

Failure to report these types of accidents carries a $5,000 fine.

Reduce Your UI Tax Rate

If you pay bonuses or issue payroll on a biweekly basis, you may be able to reduce your UI Tax rate.

Alaska's rate system is based on quarterly wage declines. A decline in quarterly wages exists when the amount of total wages you report reflects a decrease from one quarter to the next. The higher the decline in wages, the higher your tax rate may be. There are several factors that may create artificial quarterly declines, such as:

- Bonus payments
- Biweekly payroll systems
- Issuance of lump-sum payments
- Paying a labor dispute settlement
- Changes in your accounting or payroll methods

Employer Option Forms will be enclosed with your Annual Rate Notice and may be used to help equalize any quarterly declines caused by these variables. Employer Option Forms enable employers to delete or apportion wage payments. This helps to stabilize your payroll from one quarter to the next, thus obtaining a more favorable tax rate.

Questions regarding employer options and requests for Employer Option Forms should be directed to the UI Tax Employer Account Specialist Unit at 1-888-448-3527, or 465-2757 if you are calling from Juneau. Employer Option Forms, in addition to a variety of other UI Tax forms, are available online at www.labor.state.ak.us/estax.
