KEYNOTE SPEAKER

KELLEY EVERETTE

More Powerful than Fiction Story of Near Death Experience Adds Impact to Industrial Safety: Imagine laying on the job site crushed between pipe, hanging on for dear life. In 1976, Kelley Everette was working on the Trans Alaskan Pipeline. His job was to sandblast and bevel the ends of 60-foot lengths of pipe. Sections of pipe rested end to end, and although the pipe fitters took care to see who might be working around the pipe uphill of them, they got into the habit of working between the sections of pipe. He was 19 years old when this almost fatal accident occurred that would change his future forever...

Welcome to the 26th annual Governors Safety and Health Conference. The Alaska Safety Advisory Council is very excited this year, because we're giving the conference a whole new look and feel than in years past. We are opening up our format to include all things safety in a "Back to Basics" approach that looks at safety on a twenty-four hour clock, in every facet of daily life. You'll come away from this year's conference with a different perspective than in years past.

We want to bring safety to the forefront of every Alaskan's daily life and will open the doors of the Sullivan Arena at 9:00 a.m. Sunday morning October 29 with a variety of events for the whole family, free of charge.

The conference will continue on Monday and Tuesday for registered attendees providing the same excellent information on matters of occupational safety and health as well as presentations on a variety of topics from local experts.

Larger numbers of vendors are expected this year and they will continue to provide information on the newest technologies of interest. I highly encourage you to visit their booths and discuss how their products would be of use to you. They will be happy to offer their expertise.

Again we want to thank our sponsors who continue to make this conference possible. Their donations of time, money and services are a critical element in helping us bring the conference to you each year.

Please mark your calendars and plan on spending three days re-discovering the fundamentals, in a "Back to Basics" approach to all matters of safety.

Hope to see you there!

Respectfully,
Daniel R. Monteleone, RSP
Chairman, Alaska Safety Advisory Council

I am very pleased to welcome you to the 26th Annual Alaska Governor's Safety & Health Conference. This year's conference theme is "Back to Basics - Safety & Health for Home & Industry." Thanks to the hard work of the Alaska Safety Advisory Council and all of the conference sponsors, you will discover a whole new look and feel to this year's conference. From safety and health on the job, in our homes, on our roads and in Alaska's great outdoors and more, the "Back to Basics" approach makes good common sense for our active Alaskan way of life. I hope you enjoy the conference!

--Alaska Governor Frank H. Murkowski
