Burke Receives National Award

Juneau - The National Association of State Workforce Agencies (NASWA) on Tuesday in Rapid City, S.D. awarded Ted Burke, Alaska Department of Labor and Workforce Development's regional job center manager for Southeast Alaska, the "James R. Walls One-Stop Employee of the Year Award."

The award honors a "one-stop" state agency employee whose conduct demonstrates his or her outstanding dedication to customers and fellow employees. The employee must have demonstrated extraordinary service to his or her community, met with vigor the challenge of reorganization within the existing workforce system and be an employee of a state government local office or "one-stop" center.

"Ted coordinated the successful redesign of the four Southeast Alaska job centers so they are more customer-friendly and are focused on helping people find the jobs and or the training they need to be successful. The entire department is proud of him," said Greg O'Claray, the commissioner of Labor and Workforce Development.
